FOLLOW THE MONEY

As we know, the U.S. penal system is a massive industry. It cages over 2.4 million people, with an additional 5 million controlled under probation/parole. Its estimated annual turnover is $74 billion. What the companies which make up this industry do to get this money range from prison management, to providing medical and meal services, to private probation operations and the supplying of surveillance apparatus. Additional areas in which for-profit companies are expanding their involvement include prison banking, facility construction, information technology, and prison labor.

Many of the companies involved with making money from prisons and prisoners are very small, with relatively few publicly-traded ones. Among the companies listed below, the American Friends Service Committee recommends the following 6 for divestment: Corrections Corporation of America, G4S plc, Hewlett-Packard Company, Providence Services Corporation, the GEO Group, and Sodexo SA. Where Have All the Soldiers Gone?

U.S. "special operations" military forces deployment are at an all-time historic high: this year, "special ops" have been sent to a record 147 countries--75% of the nations on the planet. This is a 145% increase since G.W. Bush's presidency. It means that, on any given day, U.S. forces are on the ground in 70 to 90 different countries. The U.S. military is now involved in more than 90% of Africa's 54 nations. What they do there includes: construction, military exercises, advisory assignments, security cooperation and training missions. There were 674 missions carried out across Africa last year. This was a 300% jump from previous years.

The U.S. Africa Command claims that there is only one base on the continent, Camp Lemonnier in Djibouti, where, at the new drone base at Chabelley Airfield, they're running at least 16 drones per day. They are conducting the war in Yemen and in Somalia. There are also drone bases in Somalia, Chad, Ethiopia and Niger.

There are also now 11 "contingency security locations" in Africa, which can be ramped up quickly, in addition to "rapid response forces" in Spain and Italy. The U.S. has funded troops in Kenya so it won't have a large number of troops on the ground there.

MORE NUMBERS

In 2014 the richest 80 people in the world held as much wealth as did the 3.6 billion poorest people--half of the human species. (Source: Oxfam)

In the U.S. in 1965 the income ratio of the chief executive officers of the Top 350 firms to that of their workers was 20-to-1. By 2014, it was 296-to-1. The wealthiest 0.1% held 22% of U.S. wealth.

No somos los silenciados

Un tribunal federal apeló al principio del noviembre contra la orden ejecutiva del Obama que protegería a 5 millones de inmigrantes indocumentados contra una deportación. Un panel de tres jueces de la Corte de Apelaciones en Nuevo Orleans se opusiera el plan de Obama. El programa hubiera permitido inmigrantes indocumentados pudieran solicitar un permiso de trabajo por tres años y estuvieran protegidos de una posible deportación durante este periodo. La decisión fue de 2 contra 1.
