

A WASTE (April 8, 2013)

By Joseph Dole

Gravity devours my sands,
Stealing them from my hands.

Denying me the opportunity to utilize them at all,
I'm' relegated to mourning each as they fall.

If only I could catch just a few of those left,
At peace, I might actually be able to rest,
When they gang up and bring about my death.